JOSHUA SMITH

A multidisciplinary artist whose work draws on the vast, colourful landscapes that surround his current home in Cornwall.

Joshua's abstract works are an expression of the Cornish coastlines and its dramatic, expansive skies.

This informs the pieces he creates in his home studio, as does the stark beauty of the rural Scottish fishing village where he grew up in a house looking out onto the North Sea.

His work is a considered balance of chance and direction. His meditative, intuitive practice and a playful interaction with the canvas bring together layered acrylic washes.

This way of working, married with his colour palette, seeks to romanticise natural light, conveying a dreamlike sense of immersion.

The exhibition runs from 27th (Private View) June until 20th August.

From Joshua:

'Being the first collection I've created in my new studio, Morgarrow, this series has been a labour of love.

Immersed in this new setting, perched on the cliffs of Newquay where Cornwall's natural beauty is in abundance.

The collection is an exploration of various techniques, canvases, as well as scale.

It allows for interplay of hues within the works to beckon viewers into an intimate and imaginative experience with each piece.'
